The raising featured major shareholders and a number of unidentified "leading institutional investors", with the new shares priced at 1.9c each.

Following the raising Antipa will have more than two billion shares on issue.

The company reported starting 2019 with $3.9 million cash.

Antipa has flagged a focus on aeromagnetic greenfield gold-copper targets within the El Paso Corridor.

"These targets including several that are analogous to Rio Tinto's recently announced Winu copper-gold discovery, Newcrest Mining's Telfer gold-copper deposit and Greatland Gold's Havieron gold-copper discovery," Antipa said.

"Additionally, Antipa will systematically test additional brownfields targets including Pajero, Triangle and Turkey Farm that have the potential to add high-grade gold ounces to the company's 100% owned resource base."

Shares in Antipa were down 8% to 2.2c in morning trade, capitalising the company at $40 million.

Over the past 12 months the stock has traded in a range of 1.2-3.7c.
